WILL OFFER COURSE ON PLURAL SOCIETIES

□ The Department of Sociology and Anthropology has announced that Professor R. Berndt, will present, during the 1969-70 academic year, a special program entitled 'SOCIAL AND CULTURAL ASPECTS OF PLURAL SOCIETIES'.

The course will define the concepts and conditions of social and cultural pluralism. Some attention will be devoted to the conceptual framework of the "plural society" current in the theoretical literature.

Particular emphasis will be devoted to revealing the diversity of cultural bases and examining the types of social organization evidenced by African and Caribbean ethnographic literature. It is hoped that this investigation will indicate its importance for social theory and research.
