Overseas Programs

- This summer students will have the opportunity to study Spanish at the University of Santander on the northern coast of Spain. Its library is one of the finest in the country, and it offers intensive and efficient language training for foreign students who will be housed in the former summer residence of Spanish royalty.

Courses will run from July 2 to August 15. Departure is from Thunder Bay, 3:20 p.m. on July 2. Return arrangements are flexible to allow for European tour if desired.

Courses offered will include Intermediate Spanish Grammar and Composition, Modern Spanish Literature, and Seventeenth Century Drama.

Enrolment is limited, and the deadline is May 15. Fees of $650 include board and lodging, tuition and air travel.

- Courses in English and Art will be presented at Stratford-upon-Avon this summer. English courses in Pre-Shakespearean and Shakespearean Drama, and Advanced Shakespeare. A credit course in fine arts entitled Introduction to Visual Communication will also be available.

Besides the regular course content, all will include excursions and trips to points of cultural interest in England.

A fee of $775 will cover tuition for one course, round-trip air fare (leaving Thunder Bay July 2 and returning either at the middle or end of August, according to your preference), your living accommodation in Stratford-upon-Avon, and theatre and excursion tickets. Enrolment deadline is May 1.

Further information and application forms are available through the Department of Extension and Summer Session.

International Geographical Union

In August 1972, Canada hosts the 22nd International Geographical Congress in Montreal and concurrently with it the 6th International Cartographic Association Conference. At the last I.G.U. Congress in New Delhi, India in 1968, Canada won the honour of hosting the Union in 1972 by a small majority over the Soviet Union, and hence has been very busy for several years with the details of preparation.

A conference of this size consists not only of a week long meeting at Montreal, but a large pre-and post-Congress program of symposia, field tours, and commission meetings, taking place in centres right across Canada, most of them hosted by individual universities, including Lakehead. The range of activities is impressive and reflects the strong trend towards the application of geographic techniques and knowledge to current societal and ecosystemic problems. Symposia are being held on cultural discord in the modern world, the role of the city in the modernization of developing countries, and the problems of slow growth of stagnant areas within developed countries. Commissions meet to examine such areas as geographical data sensing and processing, high altitude geoecology, geomorphological survey and mapping, coastal and periglacial geomorphology, population geography, the regional aspects of economic development, medical geography, transport geography and agricultural typology.

A large number of field excursions are now in the process of being finalized, offering a unique opportunity to cross and recross this land with specific study tasks. One trip carries delegates into the Arctic islands, another to the coast of Newfoundland, with every region between also represented. One excursion is planned to act as the tie between these others, a Trans Canada Excursion starting in two sections in Montreal on August 17th and 19th and arriving in Vancouver on September 1st and 3rd. At Lakehead, Dr. Phillips is coordinator of the arrangements for the journey between Marathon and Kenora. Each section will be of 90 persons in two coaches interconnected by radio and equipped with a variety of audio-visual devices. The party will stay overnight at Terrace Bay, visit the Kimberly-Clarke mill and continue to Thunder Bay where they will stay in Residence. Supper will be held at the Centennial Park Bushcamp and the following morning the party will tour the city and lunch at Kakabeka before pressing on to Kenora. A tourguide has already been written, and there is in preparation a large volume of material for in-bus commentary and question-times. One of the salient features will be the mixed nationalities of the parties, account having to be taken of special diets, as well as the more usual provision of facilities for postage, laundry and possible ill health.

The Geography Department will be busy with these tasks, but at present a committee including several local high-school teachers is just commencing the detailed final planning. In August, Northwestern Ontario will be on show to 180 professional geographers. What they see and do, and the impressions they gain, might affect their teaching of the geography of Canada in many countries for years to come.

Senate Notes

The Senate met on the afternoon of February 24. Highlights of the meeting included the initiation, upon the motion of the Dean of Arts, Professor Tim Ryan, of an ad hoc committee to investigate alleged administrative difficulties in the Department of Languages.

There was unanimous agreement that a parliamentarian should be elected or appointed to assist the Chairman on the interpretation of Senate regulations. Provision was made for a Faculty of Arts Council.

The Presidential Search Committee reported that it was continuing to receive and review applications, but that no candidate would be recommended at that time. The Academic Staff Committee announced its dissolution in view of the fact that its purposes are handled more and more by ad hoc committees such as the Presidential Search Committee.

Calendar dates for the coming year were presented and accepted. Voluminous recommendations of the Academic Planning Committee were endorsed; some, particularly the paring of Honours Spanish courses, met with considerable opposition.

The ad hoc committee investigating the Draft Report of the Ontario Commission on Post-Secondary Education, reported that it was particularly concerned about the implications of centralizing bureaucracy in Toronto. The committee was busy planning a list of questions to be presented at hearings on March 6 for the purpose of clarifying some apparent contradictions in the Draft Report.

The Senate registered its collective consternation at the prospect of professional essay services supplying term papers to undergraduates. Ways and means of dealing with the situation were discussed at some length.

Essay Services

At its meeting on February 4, Council of Ontario Universities discussed the problem of commercial distribution and sale of term papers in Ontario. Euphemistically described as 'student reference material', these term papers have been circulated widely on American college campuses. Attempts are being made to expand the business into Canada with the help of Canadian entrepreneurs.

While recognizing that many Faculties, departments and individual teachers have developed methods of detecting plagiarism, COU decided to seek some legal opinion on the issue. The Council of Deans of Ontario Faculties of Law, an affiliate of COU, has been asked to consider the implications of business enterprises preparing or obtaining manuscripts analogous to term papers, essays, or theses for sale to Ontario university students, and to recommend to COU appropriate action.

It is hoped that a combination of legal regulations and faculty vigilance will effectively discourage the expansion of the term paper business.

Campus Notes

- Professor B. A. Hodson will present a paper entitled "An approach to data processing using data specification strings" at the third annual forum on research in business at Queens University, March 24/25. The paper summarizes results of research undertaken in the past several years which could result in radical change in the field of data processing.
- Dr. R. G. Rosehart and Professor D. MacLean of the School of Engineering presented a seminar on the "Thermal analysis of nuclear fuel with hydrogen cold sinks" at the Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., Whiteshell Research Station, Pinawa, Manitoba, on Friday, February 25.
- The Departments of Chemistry, Biology, Physics and Geology announce a lecture on "Some research problems at the quality water lab", which will be given by Dr. John Teasley, Assistant Director of the United States Government's National Water Quality Laboratory, Duluth, Minnesota. The talk takes place on Tuesday, March 14, at 4:30 p.m. in Room MB-1031.
- At the invitation of the School of Forestry, Clifford E. Ahlgren, Director of the Quetico-Superior Wilderness Research Centre and research associate with the College of Forestry, University of Minnesota, visited Lakehead University on Monday, March 6. In the afternoon, he lectured to degree and technology students on the grafting and breeding of five-needle pines for resistance to blister rust. And in the evening he presented a public lecture on the ecology of fire in the forest, and its use in prescribed burning. It was news to many that forest fires are beneficial in the regeneration of trees.

Summer Language Program

Students wanting to improve their knowledge of one of Canada's two official languages will have opportunity this summer to participate in a bursary program under the auspices of the federal and provincial governments. A total of 3,500 second language training bursaries, funded by the Department of Secretary of State and awarded by the 10 provincial departments of education, will be available. The bursary program, designed to encourage bilingualism among young Canadians at the post-secondary level, will be implemented in selected institutions offering French and English summer classes as second languages.

The bursaries, valued at a maximum of $600 each, will be granted to students enrolled in French or English Immersion Courses at accredited institutions across Canada.

All students will be required to reside in residence on campus or in private homes especially chosen because of favourable second language milieus. No transportation or pocket money allowances will be granted to students.

Students are eligible if they are Canadian citizens -
