Wright Reports

An Ad Hoc Committee of Senate, under the chairmanship of the Vice-President, Dr. W. D. R. Eldon, is in the process of preparing replies, on behalf of the University, to the Wright Commission's Draft Report on Post-Secondary Education in Ontario and its Final Report on Northwestern Ontario. Members of the Ad Hoc Committee addressed the Commission at its public hearings in Thunder Bay on March 6, seeking clarification, explanation, and motivation for the major points in the Draft Report. The Committee will present their findings and recommendations on both reports to Senate at a future meeting.

New Minister of Colleges and Universities, the Honourable George Kerr, last week mistakenly informed members of the Alma Mater Society Executive that the Northwestern Ontario Report had been endorsed by the University's Faculty Association. The Minister apparently confused the University faculty with that of Confederation College, since no group within the University has yet issued an official statement on the final Northwestern Ontario Report.

New Title

Holt, Rinehart and Winston of Toronto has recently published a book entitled The Best of Times, The Worst of Times by H. A. Stevenson, R. M. Stamp, and J. D. Wilson. Dr. Wilson is an Assistant Professor in the Department of History.

The new book is a collection of readings from Canadian works on the major issues in Canadian education. Sources range from articles in learned journals, newspapers, magazines and even underground newspapers in order to ensure that a wide spectrum of opinion is represented on each issue.

Dr. Wilson explains that the need for such a book became apparent during research undertaken for an earlier book entitled Canadian Education: A History, Prentice-Hall, Scarborough, 1970. It was felt by Dr. Wilson and his colleagues that British and American texts were inadequate in helping students of Canadian education to understand their own system. For example, issues such as bi-lingualism and the education of native peoples would not be touched upon in texts from other countries.

The book is designed primarily as a springboard for discussion in such courses as the history of education, sociology of education, or particularly in courses concerned with the issues in Canadian education. The book deals with the primary, secondary and post-secondary levels of education, in addition to taking account of the relationships between education and leisure time.

The Canadian focus of the book seems to assure its success. It has already been adopted as an official text by the University of British Columbia and Memorial University, Newfoundland. It will soon be available through the University Book Store.

Welcome News!

During the fall term the faculty members of the Senate Academic Planning Committee joined together to form a subcommittee to discuss privately among themselves the problem of the allocation of academic resources in a period of financial constraint.

On March 17 this subcommittee introduced the following motion to the parent committee:

That the Academic Planning Committee receive the report of the subcommittee and distribute it among the University community for the purpose of discussion prior to final consideration by the Academic Planning Committee.

This motion was carried.

Copies of the report may be borrowed from Departmental secretaries or the A.M.S. office. A summary will appear in the March twenty-ninth issue of Argus. The subcommittee urges all members of the University community to read its report before the Academic Planning Committee discusses it and prepares various motions to be introduced in Senate.

On April 4 an open meeting will be held in the University Centre Theatre from 2 to 5 p.m., to receive reactions to recommendations contained in the report and to receive support for them.

Let the voice of the University Community be heard.

New Personnel Director

Dr. W. G. Tamblyn, President of Lakehead University, recently announced the appointment of Mr. Hugh T. Renaud as the University's Director of Personnel.

Mr. Renaud was born and educated in Toronto, receiving his B.Sc. Forestry from the University of Toronto in 1943. After serving in the Armed Forces, Mr. Renaud joined Kimberly-Clark Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd. in 1946, for whom he worked in Terrace Bay and Longlac until 1969, during which period he worked his way from camp foreman to Operations Superintendent, Woodlands Division. From 1962 to 1969 he was the Superintendent of Industrial Relations. In 1969 Mr. Renaud returned to the University of Toronto to pursue post-graduate studies in Business Administration, and from 1970 to the present he has been in the management consulting field. During the past eight months, he has both taught and done consulting work for Humber College.

Mr. Renaud has been active in the Ontario Professional Foresters' Association, the Ontario Pulp and Paper

Hugh T. Renaud

Association, and the Northwestern Ontario Timber Operators' Association. For four years he served as a member and Chairman of the Longlac Public School Board. Mr. Renaud has also published a number of papers in the field of industrial relations.

University Committee

At the meeting of the University Committee of Wednesday, March 15, Pat Flanagan, President of the Alma Mater Society, inquired as to what measures were being taken to enforce the University regulations concerning dogs and other pets on campus, since he had observed little improvement in the situation since discussion at the last meeting. Mr. Broughton replied that as of Monday, April 20, the University's security guards are authorized to call the Humane Society to remove any unleashed animals on campus.

On the subject of the Poulin Award, presented annually to the graduating student who had best served the University during his years here, Dean Kerr stated that in the past a special committee had been formed each year to select the winner. He and the A.M.S. had recently agreed that the most appropriate body to select the winner was the University Committee. The Committee agreed to serve in this capacity. Dean Kerr added that nomination forms would soon be available through the office of the Dean of Students, and that any member of the University community is eligible to nominate candidates.

The Committee was also informed by the University President, Dr. W. G. Tamblin, of University policy concerning the extension of financial assistance for student-organized activities. Effective immediately, the University will consider requests from individuals or groups of students for financial or other support for matters of interest to the general student body only if the request comes from the senior executive officer of the student organization in whose jurisdiction the matter lies (i.e. A.M.S., S.S.S., or S.A.S.) with the approval of the Executive or Council concerned. All such requests should be directed to the President's office. They will be considered on their individual merit. If financial support is extended, the money will be paid to the organization concerned, not to any individual.

The Employment Scene

You may recall an article in the December 2, 1971 issue of L.U. WEEK which mentioned an organized attempt on the part of graduating students in the Honours Bachelor of Commerce Degree Program to secure employment. Besides attending interviews organized on campus by the Student Placement Office, the Commerce group also sent separate letters to employers who were not planning to recruit in Thunder Bay. In addition, they collected their curricula vitae into impressive brochure form; and some of them even flew to Toronto and points east to visit with prospective employers.

Harvey Schilke, spokesman for the group, is pleased to announce that twelve of the fifteen graduating Commerce students actively seeking employment have secured promising career positions. Five have accepted employment in the Thunder Bay area, while the remainder will be moving to Toronto, Ottawa, Sudbury, North Bay and other Ontario cities. The type of employment ranges from all kinds of government work to accounting, investment, marketing and general management.

When questioned about the group's success, Mr. Schilke said, "It's a simple application of basic principles of marketing. Competition is keen, but the jobs are there. All you can do is itemize your strengths and sell yourself honestly. And if you have the ability, our experience has been that you have your choice of a few good positions."

In Defence Of Arts

According to the March issue of The Times of Saint Mary's University, Halifax, Nova Scotia, the University's President Dr. D. Owen Carrigan recently defended Bachelor of Arts graduates at a meeting of businessmen in Halifax.

The problem with the arts graduate, he said, was that when he finished college he couldn't say that he was a skilled engineer, town planner or social worker. "And in our pragmatic society it is said that he therefore can't be plugged into any particular business."

Dr. Carrigan said this attitude was all wrong.

While the arts graduate may not have the skills that would prepare him for a specific task, he has acquired a set of skills which were invaluable in today's business world, he said.

In three or four years in university, an arts student acquired the skills of critical judgement, interpreting information, carrying out research in a variety of subjects, expressing himself in writing, and the skill of being able to analyze and come to grips with problems, he said.

With regard to acquiring the ability to interpret, he said, none could get through a Bachelor of Arts program without developing this kind of skill.

Dr. Carrigan said he didn't know of any business today that could be a success for very long "without having research skills on staff for short-term or long-term planning."

Businessmen, he said, often must hire high-priced consultants to carry out market research and analysis. The Bachelor of Arts graduate acquired such skills during his years in college.
